Alter+Care Announces Einstein Montgomery Medical Arts Building

Chicago, IL (November 16, 2011) – Alter+Care is developing Einstein Montgomery Medical Arts Building, a 75,000 SF, two-story medical office building adjacent to the new 146-bed, acute-care Einstein Medical Center Montgomery on Germantown Pike in East Norriton Township, PA. Construction of the medical office building began in July, with completion scheduled for September 2012.

According to Donna F. Jarmusz, Alter+Care’s Senior Vice President for Business Development and Strategic Initiatives, Einstein Montgomery Medical Arts Building will offer the highest quality medical office space in the area, offering physicians a rare opportunity to locate their practice on a premier medical campus that includes a major hospital - the 146-bed, acute-care Einstein Medical Center Montgomery. Tenants will benefit from being located within one of the fastest growing and most medically underserved populations in the region.

Serving central Montgomery County, PA – in the Philadelphia suburbs -- the medical center combines the best of academic medicine with a dedication to the community and offers training programs for physician residents and fellows, nurses and other allied healthcare professionals.

“Einstein Montgomery Medical Arts Building provides the medical and clinical presence to enable residents to access academic and community healthcare services. The medical office building will be connected to the hospital by a one-story enclosed walkway for patients’ convenience,” Jarmusz said.

“This next-generation medical office building provides a cohesive outpatient environment enabling the community to easily access advanced healthcare services,” said John Finger, Chief Administrative Officer, Einstein Healthcare Network. “The new state-of-the-art medical center will provide the full spectrum of care, including tertiary services, allowing residents access to care previously unavailable in the area.”

Einstein Healthcare Network is a 1,267-bed integrated delivery network serving Philadelphia and Montgomery County, PA.
